

Viviana Moschese, MD, MSc, PhD

- Associate Professor of Pediatrics, Faculty of Medicine and Surgery, University of Rome Tor Vergata.
- Coordinator - Course in General and Specialized Pediatrics, Faculty of Medicine and Surgery, University of Rome Tor Vergata.
- Head - Pediatric Immunopathology and Allergology Unit, Policlinico Tor Vergata, University of Rome Tor Vergata, Italy.
- Head - Regione Lazio Referral Centre for Rare Diseases/Primary Immunodeficiencies, Policlinico Tor Vergata, University of Rome Tor Vergata, Italy.
- Director - Master in Advanced Pediatric Allergy and Immunology, University of Rome Tor Vergata.
- President - Vaccine Committee, Italian Society of Pediatric Allergology & Immunology.
- Active member - Italian Primary Immunodeficiency Network (IPINet).
- IPINet Registry Responsible – for Transient Hypogammaglobulinemia of Infancy.
- Active member - European Society of Immuno Deficiencies (ESID).

Past clinical/research experiences abroad:

- Dept of Immunology and Hematology at Necker Children's Hospital, Paris.
- Dept of Pediatric Immunology at UCSF, San Francisco.
- Dept of Immunology and Dept of Virology at Karolinska Institute, Stockholm.

Her major scientific and clinical responsibilities include:

- Clinical, immunological and genetic characterization of Inborn Errors of Immunity with special focus on primary antibody defects.
- Allergy Diseases, including primary atopic disorders, and their management
- Vaccination in the vulnerable, i.e. in Immunocompromised and Allergy patients as well as in pregnant women.